Admission to the University Honors Program requires a formal application. Students may be admitted to the University Honors Program prior to their first year of college, after having completed at least one semester at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, or upon transferring to the University. Acceptance into the Honors Program is based on a comprehensive evaluation of the student’s application by the Honors Program faculty and staff. Students admitted to the program have demonstrated a commitment to intellectual curiosity and academic excellence, are typically in the top ten percent of their high school class, and have an average ACT score of 31. A special notation is made on the transcript and diploma upon graduation from the University Honors Program to inform graduate schools and employers of the student’s superior performance.

All undergraduate colleges support the program, and Honors courses frequently apply to college and major requirements. Students admitted to the University Honors Program have access to all Honors courses taught at the University of Nebraska—Lincoln without additional authorization, provided they have met any necessary pre-requisites. Honors Program students may request housing in the Honors residence, Knoll Residential Center. They will additionally have access to Honors-specific experiential learning opportunities, such as education abroad programs, internships, and teaching/mentoring roles. Students admitted to the University Honors Program may also be admitted to the cohort-based Honors programs or academies at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln: the Jeffrey S. Raikes School of Computer Science and Management (http://raikes.unl.edu) and the Nebraska Business Honors Academy (http://business.unl.edu/academic-programs/honors-academy).
